2.  “Lesik’s adventures”.

Did you know?Did you know that there are 115 cities and towns in Belarus?

Large or small, old or young, they all have something interesting to share with us. Look at the statue of the man with the key to Minsk. At his feet, there is a map of the town from 1499. That's when it got Magdeburg rights and could make its own rules. Because of this, Minsk became richer and more important. However, the first town to get this special "town passport" was Brest, and it happened in 1391. At that time people called it Berestye. In fact, between the 14th and 18th centuries, about 70 places in Belarus had Magdeburg rights.

1b. Read about two places in the Belarusian countryside that Sasha visited last summer. How did he feel there?

Yelnya Swamp in Vitebsk region is the largest raised¹ swamp in Belarus and the fifth largest in Europe. It is over 9 thousand years old! Walk along the eco-trail “Ozeravki-Yelnya”. It is a popular tourist path. You should put on comfortable shoes and a hat. It took us about 2.5 hours to get through the swamp, so we were very tired. Do you like cranberry drink and jam? Then Yelnya is the best place for picking these berries. If you like watching birds, go to Yelnya in spring or autumn. Then, there are more than 30,000 cranes there. They make a stop on the swamp before they fly to Africa for the winter.

Did you know that there are seven waterfalls in Belarus? The most famous and the biggest waterfall is near Prudniki on the River Vyata 50 km away from Braslav in Miory district. It is more than two metres high. You shouldn't walk on the rocks because it's dangerous! There are small parking lots on both banks of the river, and there is a beach with gazebos¹, benches and tables for tourists. On sunny weekends, many people relax on the beach. When we were there, it was very hot, so I enjoyed swimming in the cool river water!

Did you know that 40.3% of our country are forests? In other words, there are 9.7 million hectares of forests. The largest of them are Nalibokskaya and Belovezhskaya Pushchas.

Twenty four kinds of trees grow in our forests.

Though the average tree is 57 years old, there are some trees that are much older! Yakub, the oak-tree (дуб / дуб) that grows in the field near Nesvizh, is 250 years old, but it's not the oldest tree. It takes 5 people and a child to hug (обнять / ахапіць) this natural monument.

Forests are our treasure and we should take care of it. The first action (акция / акцыя) “Give the forest a new life” started in October 2024. In the spring and autumn of 2025, there were two more such actions. Only in autumn people planted about 18 million new trees!

Asia is the largest of all the continents. Asia has the highest mountain in the world – Everest. It is covered with snow. High up, the weather is cold and windy, so plants can't grow there. There is a desert in Asia. There are many rainforests and jungles¹ too. In the North of Asia, in Siberia, there are snow forests – taiga.

a plant

Africa is the second largest continent. You can find the longest river and the largest desert in the world there. A desert is a dry place with very little rain. In the day time, it is very hot, but at night it is very cold. Only animals and plants that need very little water can live in the desert. There is a big rainforest in Africa too. A rainforest gets lots of rain. Rainforests are home to thousands of different plants and animals. The weather is hot and wet there all the year round. In Africa, you can see the savanna. It is grassland – a plain covered with grass. There are only two seasons in the grasslands – the wet season and the dry season.

Antarctica is a continent that doesn't have any countries. It is a snow desert. It is cold, dry, and windy. There are no people there, only visitors. There are almost no plants there, too. The seas and oceans around Antarctica are very deep and cold.

Australia is the smallest continent and a country. Most people in Australia live in cities by the sea coast, and some of them live in the centre of Australia. This desert area is called the Outback. Near Australia, there are many islands and beautiful coral reefs.

Europe has about 50 countries: cold and warm countries. Europe has many forests. They have seasons and trees that lose their leaves in autumn. Some forests are so thick that they are difficult to walk through. The grasslands of Europe are called steppes.

It is very cold in some of the countries of North America. Some parts of the continent are desert land. Prairies are the grasslands of North America. There are lots of forests there too. The snow forests in colder areas have evergreen¹ trees. They don't lose their leaves in winter.

There are deserts, mountains, and rainforests in South America. The grasslands of South America are called pampas. You can see the highest waterfalls in the world there. The Amazon rainforests can cover half of Europe. Amazonia helps our planet to breathe.

It's the only day of the year when parents say that their children must get dirty!

B. Eid al-Fitr ([i:d æl 'fitər] – Ид аль-Фитр / Ід аль-Фітр) is one of the most important festivals in the country. It happens at the end of Ramadan, the month when people fast (постяться / посяцяць) from sunrise to sunset. On this day, families wake up early and wear their best clothes. They go to mosques² to pray. People make sweet dishes like sheer khurma (a dessert with milk, dates (финики / фінікі), and noodles). Children get gifts or money called Eidi from older family members. Everyone visits friends and relatives, shares food, and helps those in need. It is a happy festival full of joy and thankfulness.

C. In this country, children look forward to the 15th day of the 8th lunar month. On this day, they celebrate Tết Trung Thu ([tet truŋ tu:] – Тэт Чунг Тху / Тэт Чунг Тху), the autumn festival of the moon. On this night, the moon shines its brightest and most beautiful. Parents who have worked hard in the fields enjoy spending time with their children and giving them lots of presents. Children wear colourful masks and dance in the streets. In their hands, they have star lanterns³ with candles, which represent the moon. The children also eat mooncakes. Shaped like fish or flowers, the sweet cakes are filled with sugar and meat or eggs.

D. Each year on April 23, this country celebrates Çocuk Bayramı ([tʃo'dʒuk baj'rami] – Чоджук Байрамы / Чаджук Байрамы), or Children's Day. Children all over this country between Europe and Asia wear the national costume for the festival. Many children take part in plays or musicals. The most important part of the festival takes place in Turkey's capital, Ankara, where children from all over the world sing and dance in an exciting concert.

E. Inti Raymi ([¹inti 'raimi] – Інти Райми / Інці Раймі) is one of the most important festivals in the country. It takes place in June to honour¹ Inti, the Sun God of the Inca civilisation. In the city of Cusco, people wear traditional costumes and walk together to an ancient fortress. There, actors perform rituals in the Quechua language, just like the Incas centuries ago. Tourists and local people love the festival because it's full of music, dancing, and colourful costumes.

The village got its second life when Joseph Bulka (1925–2010) came in 1989. He organised work to rebuild the Catholic Church of St Anna and to plant a park around it. Visitors can see here a lot of flowers, trees and bushes, alpine ['ælpain] gardens, ponds¹, and sculptures ['skʌlptʃəz] on religious themes.

Dear Mum and Dad,

I hope you are doing well! I want to tell you about my trip to Berezinsky Reserve. It was great!

First, we took a bus from Minsk. The reserve is very big and beautiful – full of forests, rivers, and swamps. Our group leader told us fun stories about magic in the swamps!

We visited the Nature Museum and saw animals like wolves, bears, bison, and lynx. Did you know bison were sacred¹ in ancient times? Then, we walked on wooden paths over the swamps, listened to birds, and even saw a beaver!

We also looked for special stones with old pictures on them. And guess what? I made a wish under a 300-year-old tree!

At night, we went on a Night Safari with flashlights to find animals. At first, I felt a little nervous, but the leader helped me feel happy and brave. It was great!

I miss you, but I’m having so much fun! I’ll tell you more when I come home.

Love,
Diana

Dear Diary,

My family and I are in Sochi. I'm on a ship now and it's amazing! The weather is fantastic and the sea is calm and beautiful. I'm happy – I'm not seasick at all. Yesterday, I saw two dolphins swimming near the shore. They were jumping and playing in the waves. I shouted, "Hello, friends!" and they swam even closer. They went up and down as if they were saying hello back. I love this trip already!

Dear Diary,

Now I'm in India! We arrived two days ago. The flight was great – I sat by the window and could see the clouds very clearly. India is very interesting, but also very, very hot. Every day we go swimming in the Indian Ocean. Yesterday, we visited an amusement park, and I even rode an elephant! In the morning, I had a stomach ache, so Mum took me to the hotel doctor. I'm fine now, but I can't go to the beach today.

Dear Diary,

We took a train to Gomel. In the city, we got a little lost because we weren't sure which street to take. We asked a man for help, and he was very kind and showed us the way to our hotel. Our hotel is close to the Palace of Rumyantsev-Paskevich, which looks amazing! Tomorrow we will explore the famous park and visit the Museum of the History of Gomel City. Sometimes I think: "It's such a small world!"

He ended his adventure 13 years later with 74,842 km behind him and with a Guinness World Record as the first man to travel all the way around the Earth by human power¹ – the power of his arms and legs. During the journey, he spoke at 900 schools in 37 countries about nature protection².

2a. Listen to the article about Chen Lin and answer the questions below.

² protection [prə'tekʃ(ə)n] – охрана / ахова

2b.  Listen, read along the article, and decide what the most difficult section of the expedition was. Explain why you think so.

Europe. On 12 July 1994, Chen Lin and Li Wei began their adventurous journey from the Greenwich Meridian Line. The men travelled south on bicycles. They arrived on 29 September 1994.

The Atlantic Ocean. Chen and Li then crossed the Atlantic Ocean by pedal boat named Moksha (“freedom” in Sanskrit). Taking turns at the pedals, they came to North America in 111 days.

North America. Chen and Li crossed the continent by bikes and rollerblades.

The Pacific Ocean. In 1998–1999, Chen and Li spent 53 days pedalling Moksha across the Pacific Ocean to Hawaii, where Wei left the project. After that, Chen Lin pedalled his boat for about 3,000 miles across the Pacific Ocean and the Coral Sea to come to Australia.

Australia. In 2001, Chen Lin and his supporters spent 88 days cycling across Australia and finished this part of the expedition in the port city of Darwin, Northern Territory. In Australia, Lin spent many years, collecting money to continue the expedition.

Indonesia. In 2005, Chen Lin left Australia for Indonesia [ˌɪndəˈniːʒə]. In kayaks [ˈkaɪæks], he went from island to island through the Indonesian Archipelago to Singapore [ˌsɪŋəˈpɔː], an island country in Asia.

Asia. In 2006, Chen Lin biked from Singapore to the Himalayas [hɪmə'leɪəz]. He hiked and biked through the Himalayas to the port of Mumbai [mʊm'baɪ], India.

Africa. Lin rode a bike through Sudan, but he was arrested in Egypt because he was taken for a spy (шпион / шпиён). When the police let him go, he had to ride his bike at night to continue the expedition.

Europe. He rode a bike across Europe. On 6 October 2007, he crossed the Greenwich Meridian Line.

During the expedition, a car hit Lin in North America, breaking both of his legs. It took him 9 months to stand on his feet again. He twice had malaria [mə'leəriə], and a crocodile attacked him near Australia in 2005.

Future Simple

Будущее простое время / Будучы прасты час

Будущее простое время используется для того, чтобы сказать или спросить о том, что, по-нашему мнению, возможно, произойдёт в будущем. Для выражения будущего простого времени используется глагол will, который после местоимений часто употребляется в сокращённой форме 'll, например / Будучы прасты час выкарыстоўваецца для таго, каб сказаць ці спытацца пра тое, што, на нашу думку, магчыма, адбудзецца ў будучым. Для таго каб атрымаць будучы прасты час, выкарыстоўваецца дзеяслоў will, які пасля займеннікаў часта ўжываецца ў скарачанай форме 'll, напрыклад:

I think Sam and Bill will get home. I don't think they'll get home.

Отрицательная форма глагола will – will not (= won't [wəʊnt]), например / Адмоўная форма дзеяслова will – will not (= won't [wəʊnt]), напрыклад:

Для образования вопросительного предложения в будущем простом времени глагол will становится перед подлежащим. / Для ўтварэння пыталнага сказа ў будучым простым часе дзеяслоў will становіцца перад дзейнікам.
